EUSE Conference June 14-16th. 2011 in Copenhagen

The European Union of Supported Employment promotes the concept of Supported Employment as a vehicle/methodology to assist disabled and disadvantaged people access their right to work.

Whilst there are slight variations of the definition across the world, there remain three consistent elements that are fundamental to the European Supported Employment model:

1. Paid Work - Individuals should receive commensurate pay for work carried out – if a country operates a national minimum wage then the individual must be paid at least this rate or the going rate for the job
2. Open Labor Market – People with disabilities should be regular employees with the same wages, terms and conditions as other employees who are employed in businesses/ organizations within the public, private or voluntary sectors
3. Ongoing Support - This refers to job support in its widest concept whilst in paid employment. Support is individualized and is on a needs basis for both the employee and the employer
